FENN'S SURPRISE AT GOLF.

GILLESPIE, FROM QUEBEC, DEFEATS THE PALMETTO EXPERT.

Brisk Play in the Open Tournament at the Country Club of Westchester Despite Adverse Weather Conditions-Wright Defeat Canadian-Team Match for Women. Fenn's light was put out by Gillespie, the ex-champion amateur of Canada, yesterday, in the norning play at the open tournament of the Country Club of Westchester. A gale, that carried frequent dashes of rain, swept over the links, which are on the shore of Pelham Bay, and bothered the golfers in the early hours. In the afternoon a heavy rainfall set in. Despite these adverse conditions the golfing was most

The end of the first round found Gillesple on the topmost pinnacle of fame. Fenn started out in great style. He made the first nine holes in 40 to the Canadian's 45, and then he was three holes in the lead. Gillespie had been using a borrowed set of clubs, but he now began play as though he had whittled each club with his own hands from the original wood. He won the tenth hole in 3, and as Fenn was ditched on his brassey shot Gillespie also won he eleventh. Next, two of the long holes were halved in the par strokes respectively of 5 and 4. Then Gillespie won the 135-yard hole in 3 o Fenn's 4, and the score was all square. For the fifteenth hole, of 107 yards, the Canadian was short on his approach put and took 4 to hole out, Fenn getting down in 3 and taking the lead again. The sixteenth hole is also a short one, 178 yards, and a twenty-foot put enabled Gillespie to win it in S. He also won the long seventeenth hole, in 5 to 6, which made him dormie. They halved the home hole n 6, leaving Gillespie the victor by one hole The Canadian missed a short put for a 5 or 37. As it was he tied the competitive record for nine holes. Cards follow:

In the other matches of this round Wright of Philadelphia won easily from Huntington, the Scranton champion, while Rushmore, Robbins. Sands, Baker, and Bowers also won with many holes to spare. Bowers made a neat round by strokes, a well-carned 88, as follows:

Larcoque and Travis had a well-fought battle.
They were even up at the ninth, but Larcoque gained the lead at the tenth hole. The latter, however, did not capture a hole afterward, and Travis won by 3 up. Their cards were:

In the first round of the Consolation Cup match each of the Scranton men won his game, Whitmore by 2 and Brooks by 1 up. The best players in this division were Reynal and Hamilton, As the cards show, the Knollwood men won handly: Reynal...

Rushmore had Bowers 1 down at the ninth green, and although the Tuxedo man was 3 up at the sixteenth, he was only dormie I when they faced the home hole. The best Bowers could do was to seere a halved hole, and Rushmore was safe. Their cards:

The best match of the afternoon, from the scoring point, was between Sands and Baker. It was also a great match from the closeness of form between the two. Baker won the Consolation Cup at the recent Essex County Country Club tournament, nd has not been ranked in the same class as Sands. Baker, however, had Sands dormie 3, but the match was halved at the end, through Sands winding up with two the end, through Sands winding up with two 4's, remarkably good for the two long holes at the finish. Baker then withdrew, as it was impossible for him to play to-day. The cards:

Baker. 5. 7 5 5 8 2 4 4 0 40

Bands. 4 6 5 6 4 4 5 5 4 4

Baker. 8 6 6 5 4 3 4 0 0 -41

Bands. 4 6 7 5 4 8 3 4 4 -40

The second round for the Consolation Cup resulted in two extraordinarily close matches, for Lordonly won after playing nineteen holes, while Reynal and Edey, the latter rapidly becoming as expert with the driver as with the shotgun, fought the issue out to twenty holes. The nineteenth was halved in 4. Reynal winning the twentieth by 5 strokes to 6. For the first eighteen the record was:

Heymal 4 7 6 7 4 4 6 6 6—50
Edey 5 6 6 6 4 5 7 7 5—51
Reymal 4 9 6 5 9 4 4 5 5—64

The following will be the order of play in the semi-finals this morning:
Country Club Cup—Travis and Wright, Rushmore and Sands.
Consolation Cup—Lord and Taylor, Brooks and Reynal.

Chauncey F. Kerr, St. Andrew's, played twenty-seven holes in the preliminary round on Wednesday, when darkness forced him to withdraw. An extra event to-day will be a medal play handicap, open to all the defeated players during the tournament and to the club members.

For the first time in the brief reign of golf in the United States a team match on the scale of an open tournament between women players was decided yesterday on the links of the Ardsley Club. Some odd turn of golfing luck has decreed this season that the weather at Ardsley, whenever the women have claimed the links, should be unfavorable, while the men have received nothing but sunshine for their portion. Fortunately the foggy morning indicated to the most carcless weather critic that the day was sure to be a rainy one, and the women arrived well equipped for a stormy experience. They made the rounds snugly wrapped up in woollen sweaters and golf capes, in brave defiance of the pelting downpour. While it could hardly be termed a pleasant outing, not a player complained, and there was not a single withdrawal.

The cards proved that the American golfing was decided yesterday on the links of the Ards player complained, and there was not a single withdrawal.

The cards proved that the American golfing maid and matron have skill as well as pluck. The team cup, the gift of A. De Witt Cochrane, was won by the Morris County Golf Club players, but they only beat the Shinnecock Hills team by one stroke. Each member of the winning team also received a miniature copy of the team by one stroke. Each member of the winning team also received a miniature copy of the team cup as an individual trophy. The Morris County Golf Club, now one of the best known in the country, was allest projected and organized by the women of Morristown and Madison, so that the victory was a popular one with all.

The best individual score was 97, made by Miss Bestrix Hoyt, the woman champion of the United States. It was eight strokes better than the women's record for the course, which was two circuits of the old nine-hole links, and quite as good as the average class A score would have been in an Ardsiey man's handicap in such vile weather. Miss Wickham of Shinnecock Hills can Miss Shelton of Morris county tied at 103 for second place. Each is well known for her sources on the links. A member of the Ardser

Crowniushield's Model Selected at a Meeting

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, goodly number of yachting enthusiasts attended the meeting at the Grand Union Hotel last night at which the final selection was made of a model for the American Yacht Club's 25-foot water-line knockabout. The design that appeared in THE SUN last Sunday was chosen. It is the work of B. B. Crowninshield of Boston. There will, however, be a few alterations that will improve the boat considerably, from the point of view of yachtsmen who sail on Long Island Sound. Principal among the " will be a reduction to the crown of the cabin house by increasing the freeboard and lowering the cabin floor. The sail area has been increased to 800 square feet, and a short bowsprit will be rigged

About fifty members of the presbytery were present in the First Presbyterian Church at 10 o'clock when Dr. W. W. Knox of New Bruns-ARDSLEY CLUB. wick, the Moderator, called the meeting to order. In the side aisles and galleries were many men and women of the church congregation, students in the Princeton Theological Seminary, and 200 or more college undergrad nates. Dr. Knox surveyed these young mer with an uneasy smile. It was rumored that the undergraduates contemplated a noisy outbreak favoring Dr. Shields.

Dr. Shields sat in one of the front pews. He was alone. He rested his forehead on his hand The Moderator opened the meeting with a prayer, in which he asked that God would help the brethren to avoid bitterness and jealousy in the coming discussion and that, as ever, an abiding peace and harmony might possess them. Then he announced that Dr Shields had some-4 5 6 4 8 8 6 6 8-05 5 7 6 6 8 7 5 6 6-06-111 thing to say. The venerable elder rose and in a faltering voice said:

He stood while the presbytery voted to excuse him. There was a dead silence while he walked down the aisle. When the swinging door had banged behind him the clerk rose and read this

"Nov. 10, 1897, To the Presbytery of New Brunsu tok.

"DEAR BRETHREN: It is with deep regret that I find myself forced to withdraw from the Presbyterian Church and enter some other portion of the visible Catholic Church to which the good hand of God may guide me in good time. I do therefore hereby withdraw from the jurisdiction of the Presbyterian Church by becoming inde-pendent, and respectfully request that in accordance with the Book of Discipline you will record the fact of my withdrawal and erase my name from the roll. And I beg that you will kindly do this without delay. I take leave of you with heartfelt reverence and affection for a church in which so long I have lived and in for the continued success of your labors, and best wishes for your personal welfare, I remain, reverend and dear brothers, very faithfully, yours, Charles W. Shirilds."

Dr. John De Witt, Professor of Church His-tory in the seminary, offered a resolution that the stated cierk record the receipt of the letter of Dr. Shields and crase his name from the The team match was over by 3 o'clock, and then, undaunted by the lasting rain, which now came down by the bucketful, eighteen of the women started out for a nine-hole handicap foursome for two cups offered by the Ardsley Club. The avowed friends of Princeton and of Dr. Shields were sitting on the right of the church. President Patton was among them. On the other side of the room rose Dr. Rogan of Flemington.
"I had hoped," he said, "to see this discussion take another turn: that the Presbytery sion take another turn; that the Presbytery would appoint a committee of conference on this subject, which should meet Dr. Shieids and discover whether his feeling was the same as when he wrote that letter. Perhaps there might be an adjustment of views without any surrender of principle. Dr. Shields may say to such a committee, 'I have had a light.''

The Rev. E. Ruby Warne indorsed this view. He is the man who advocated the bringing of charges against Dr. Shields by the Presbytery several weeks ago. The motion for a committee was made and seconded.

Dr. Patton—I am authorized to say for Dr. invited from the following nearby clubs: New Windsor, Tuxedo Park, Hudson, Dutchess County, Garrison Country Club, and West Point. The winners were Miss Lucy Sweet and Joseph Chadwick, Jr., of the Powelton Club. On the cighteen holes they equalled the record for mixed foursome competition, and their score coming in beat the record. Summary follows:

Dr. Patton—I am authorized to say for Dr. Shields that a proposition of this kind, though meant in kindness, would only increase the pain of separation. Dr. De Witt—Dr. Shields's personal friends have endeavored by every means to dissuade him. We have exhausted our resources to that end. I am unable to vote for the resolution my end. I am unable to vote for the resolution my dear brother has so kindly stated.

Dr. Duffield—I beg that we be not put in the position of being constrained to vote this motion down. The way of peace and safety is to do exactly as the book requires and no more.

Dr. Rogan asked leave to withdraw his motion. It was granted by vote of the house.

The Roy. E. Ruby Warne rose and said, angrily; "The consent of the seconder was not asked." The Moderator—Nor required.

Dr. Warne—But this matter ought not to be disposed of so summarily. There ought to be some expression—

Dr. Warne—But this matter ought to be slipposed of so summarily. There ought to be some expression—

Mr. De Witt—We can't do it, Doctor, we can't do it. We must follow the book.

Dr. Rogan—With some regret I bring up another phase of the matter. My dear brother did not read all that the book says on this point when he undertook to inform us. The book says, I think, "any minister not charged with an offence," At our last meeting we took action bringing Dr. Shields under this exception.

City Judge William Lanning of Trenton—No charges; simply a general resolution without names.

isnoe. At our last meeting we took action bringing Dr. Shields under this exception.

City Judge William Lanning of Trenton—No charges; simply a general resolution without names.

Dr. Rogan—The Synod of New Jersey postponed action on this matter because we told them we had a process begun in relation to it.

Dr. De Witt read from the book on discipline. He used the words quoted from in more by Dr. Rogan. He then made an argument on the technical freedom of Dr. Shields from charges.

Dr. Long of Dayton—It isn't in the book just as the good brother has read, but it reads "A minster not otherwise chargeable," not "charged." Now, brethren, this Presbytery is before the Church in a peculiar way. If we can pass the motion to drop the name of Dr. Shields and add to it a deliverance that will express the feeling of the Presbytery on the question at issue, we will do well. Not only the Presbyterian Church, but the whole Church of Christ, has an eye on this body in this hour of peril.

There was a long and complicated wrangle over the points of order involved in the addition of a resolution of censure of Dr. Shields's action. Dr. Warne made an appeal for a strong temperance utterance. Dr. Duffield said that no one had a right to accuse the Presbytery of shirking. Dr. Everett said, "All we on this side want is a fair chance—that we demand!" Dr. Long said that he wanted Dr. De Witt to tell him what the Presbytery would do if Dr. Shields had been guilty of heresy and had died before he could come up for trial. The stand clerk answered for Dr. De Witt: "We would pass resolutions of regret." At last Dr. Rogan emerged from the confusion with a speech.

"If the brother," he said, "was charged with stealing a horse or being drunk, the matter could not be heralded abroad more than it has been. To nny mind Dr. Shields has been guilty of participation in tempting young men to sin."

Dr. Rogan read from the Independent the story of a young man who became a wreck after learning to drink at college.

"I want to say frankly," he contin creased 500 pounds, making the total weight of ballast 5,500 pounds. There will also be several minor alterations in the interior fittings. The lanyard of the centreboard will lead to a windlasse forward of the trunk cabin, justead of through a brass tube amidships, as w s drawn in the original specifications. The yachtamen adhered to the original clause in to ming the class that the first feature to be considered was a comfortable crulsing vessel with a moderate sail plan. The committee impressed that fact on Designer Crowninsheld, who was summoned from Boston to attend the meeting. Building under the restrictions of the Boston Knockabout Association, the boats will be measured with all cruising fixtures on board and in their proper positions. Crews will also be on board or weights of 100 pounds each will be substituted. The boats will be marked fore and aft at points of immersion, and the extreme breadth of beam, which in a centreboard boat is limited to 8 feet 9 inches, will also be marked by a small copper nail.

The centreboard, which is of wood, will not be weighed more heavily than to make it sink readily, and the hull, exclusive of board, will not draw more than 4 feet 9 inches. Two anchors, not less than 100 pounds each, must be carried, as well as sighty fathoms of cable. The crow will be limited to four, including the heimsman, who must be an amascur. Only one professional is allowed in the crew.

John Hyslop, the veteran measurer of the New York, Seawanhaka-Corinthian and Larchmont yacht clubs, was called in as a consulting expert on yacht building, and it was long after 11 o'clock before the final revision of the specifications were completed.

J. Dunhar Wright and William H. Browning

it. After recess the committee reported these resolutions:

"Whereas, The Rev. Prof. Charles W. Shields, D. D., has informed the Presbytery that he withdraws from their judicatory;

"Resolved, That the stated clerk be instructed to record his withdrawal and erase his name from the roll; ad

"Whereas, It were well to prevent misapprehemsion as to this action of the Presbytery the Presbytery again doems it advisable to call the attention of our ministers, eiders, and members to the Theilverance of the General Assemblies of 1871 and 1877 in regard to the signing of path-tions for licensing the sale of intexicating liquors as a beverage."

The clerk added, in a volce audible to everybody in the church, that the deliverances of the general Assemblies referred to spoke of signing license petitions as "reprehensible complicity." On demand of President Patton and others the resolutions were divided before the vote on them was taken. The first was adopted unanimously, Dr. Everett, Dr. Long, and others demanded that the vote on the second should be by roit call, that a geord might be preserved of the way members voted.

As the vote proceeded, each vote against the resolution which indirectly censured Dr. Shields was appleaded in the galleries by handelapping and shuffling of feet. The Moderator was unable to suppress these demonstrations, which became particularly loud when Dr. Patton voted "no." DR. There were nine negative votes. They were those of President Patton, Librarian Dulles, and Profa. Warford and Vos of the Seminary; Dr. De Vries of the Second Presbyterian Chur h, and William Freund, an elder of the same church; Dr. Alexander Murphy, Dr. H. H. Hammell, and Dr. J. O. Murray. There were thirty-sive votes in favor of the resolution.

President Patton went out of the church declaring "I will stand by that record to the crack of doom. They had no right to add that last resolution."

He declined to say how the faculty or trustees would act on the Princeton Inn if at all.

Grover Cleveland, who had not been present at the meeting, was asked afterward what he thought of the action of the Fresbytery.

"It doesn't affect me at all," he replied. "I am glad signed the petition and I would do it again. All the presbyteries and synods of the United States wouldn't change my view of that question, and I don't care how strongly I am quoted as saying so."

Dr. Cleveland is not a member of any Princeton church. Mrs. Cleveland brought letters to the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton from the New York Avenue Church of Washington, D. C. convene in Princeton to-day to consider the enjamin G. Strong, Republican Candida for Coroner, and Others File Protests.

JAMAICA, L. L. Nov. 11.—Benjamin G. Strong of Long Island City, Republican candidate for Coroner in the Borough of Queens, filed a protest with the Board of Supervisors this morning against the throwing out of votes for all three Republican candidates for Coroner in the Twentieth election district of the town of Hempstead. In that district sixty-five split tickets were cast aside by the election officials on the ground that they were illegal. On each of the tickets a cross was placed opposite the name of Philip T. Cronin, Democratic candidate for porough Coroner. In his protest Candidate Strong contends that the cross counted only against Samuel S. Guy, one of the Republican candidates for Coroner, whose name on the builds was on a line with the name of Cronin. Strong contends that an amendment to the Election law made last year cuables the votes to be counted for himself and the other candidate, but not for Guy. Should the protest hold Strong would be elected with a plurality of thirteen over Leonard Rouff, one of the Democratis. There has also been filed with the Supervisors a protest in the interest of George S. Smith of Hempstead, Democratic candidate for county Coroner. John E. Prenderville, Democratic of the borough, has filed a protest against the counting of certain marked beliefs for horough the candidate for Supervisors and Samuel S. Guy, the candidate for borough Coroner, last specified a protest against certain ballots being counted. Strong contends that the cross counted only counted.

It is expected that the courts will be called upon to settle several of the disputes, as the contestants have expressed a determination to appeal should the Supervisors decide against them.

The Aldermen completed yesterday the canvass of the vote of six Assembly districts, and will be ready this morning to proceed with the returns from the Twelfth. There is a contest returns from the Twelth. There is a contest between the Tammany and Republican candidates for Aldorman in the Eighth.

Louis Minsky, Tammany candidate, is elected by 49 plurality over P. A. Slogelstein, Republican, on the face of the returns. The official canvass did not change this result. There was a great mass of void ballots returned, and these were examined eagerly resterday by contestants and counsel. Many of these might be counted by order of the court, but such as might be would help the Tammany man as much as the Republican.

fetal Vote Cast and the Vete for the Several Candidates Pall to Balance in Several bittricis—The Riccilon Inspectors Summoned.— Cromwell, Republican, May Be Bleeted. The preliminary work in the canvass of the otes of Richmond county was begun yesterday, and revealed a state of chaos in the certificates returned by the inspectors of election which will probably take days to unravel and will undoubtedly end in legal proceedings. The Board of Canvassers met in Richmond, and owing to the crowd of spectators present at the count, had to adjourn to the Court House in order to accommodate it. When the exmination of the certificates was begun it was found that scarcely one was free from errors. Mistakes were made by the officials in the footings of the votes of candidates. The otal of the votes which appeared in a great many instances did not agree with the official figures of the votes cast in the district. In some districts no record was made of the pallots, and consequently there were discrepancies of from three to thirty votes in the figures given as the total vote and the ballots n five districts the board had to send special nessengers for the election officials in order to have them correct the figures on the certifisales that they might intelligently canvass the vote. In one instance, that of the Twelfth district of Castleton, forty-six votes were unaccounted for on the certificats. The Board of Canvassors decided that they would remain in session until midnight, or all night, if necessary, in an endeavor to get the vote in shape for canvassing. To that end the electrie light company sent a gang of employees to the Court House and strung temporary wires into it to furnish light for the work.

When the board organized Supervisor E. P. Doyle made a motion, which was carried, that the certificates be first opened and an examination be made to discover whether any errors or omissions could be found in them. John S.

Doyle made a motion, which was carried, that the certificates be first opened and an examination be made to discover whether any errors or omissions could be found in them. John S. Davenport, representing George Cromwell, the Republican contestant for President of the borough, put in a vigorous protest against the mode of procedure. He demanded that each district be canvassed by itself and said the board had no right to open certificates when they were not making the canvass. Lawyer John J. Kenney, counsel to the board, advised it that it could open the papers. Mr. Davenport then made a formal demand that the board proceed instantly to the canvass. He said it was "an extraordinary and unheard-of proceeding," and exposed the board to the suspicion that it had some purpose in view other than to canvass the returns. He demanded that when each certificate was opened a full canvass of the vote be made before the board took it into canvass the returns. He demanded that when each certificate was opened a full canvass of the vote be made before the board took it into its possession unsealed.

"Such a canvass," he cried heatedly, "is a clear and wilful violation of the law and of the order of Justice Maddox," which was that the board at once proceed to canvass the vote, taking the tally sheet only as evidence, with the original certificates. Lawyer Kenney advised the board that it had the right to proceed with the canvass in such manner as it saw proper. The purpose, he said, was to discover if any errors had been made and to bring the election officers to the scene and have them corrected. The Cromwell lawyers still objected, and in sinuated that the real purpose of the move was to get at the figures on the Feeny-Cromwell vote for the office of President of the Borough, over which there is such a hot fight.

At the conclusion of the lawyers' scrap, the board decided to open the certificates with representatives of each side as witnesses. The first package opened was from the First district of Middletown. It contained t a discrepancy in Cromwell's vote of thirty-six ballots.

The certificate in the First district of West-field stated that the total vote cast was 239, and there were no void ballots. A total of the votes given the candidates showed three less. In the Fourth district of Westfield an error of fifty votes in favor of Cromwell was found, votes cast on split tickets and uncounted. Discrepancies were also discovered in the Third district of Westfield, and the officials in that as well as the First district were sent for. The canvass of the vote of Southfield showed similar conditions. The total figures were in many instances incorrect, and the vote of candidates was figured out without any reference to void or protested ballots. The result of the vote, less the districts of Northfield, showed that Cromwell lost three votes in Castleton, as compared with tricts of Northfield, showed that Cromwell lost three votes in Castleton, as compared with the unofficial returns, and gained four in Middletown and sixty in Westfield. The vote, exclusive of the thirty-five votes in the Twelfth district of Castleton, gave Feeny at the end of the cauvass of the four towns a majority of district of Castleton, gave Feeny at the end of the canvass of the four towns a majority of eleven votes, and the excitement was intense among the spectators.

Later in the evening the Board of Canvassers decided to adjourn until 1 o'clock to-day. The board summoned the inspectors of election in the First, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth and Ninth districts of Northfield, the Second and Twelfth districts of Castleton, the First district of Westfield, and the Sixth district of Middletown to explain discrepancies in the returns.

The Middletown inspectors were in the room and offered to correct the tally. Several mistakes were apparent in the returns. After a good deal of wrangling County Clerk Elsworth refused to let the inspectors have their returns unless they obtained an order from the court.

It is expected that when the actual canvass is begun a condition similar to that found in the certificates will be discovered. In that event the canvass may take days to settle. In any event it is Evyldent, that lawsuits will result between the Feeny-Cromwell factions for the possession of the office. The Feenyltes claim Feeny's election by a few votes, while Cromwell's followers assert that he will have at least thirty-five or forty majority.

Schultz, Democrat, Declared Elected to the Assembly in Orange County.

NEWBURG, Nov. 11 .- The Orange county canwassers found an average of six defective bal-lots in each of the forty-three election districts in the Second Assembly district, or about 250 in all. Twenty-nine of these affected the vote of Schultz, the Democratic Assembly candidate, and twenty-five affected Bedell, the Republican anndidate. This was a net gain of five votes for Bedell and reduced Schultz's majority from thirty-two to twenty-seven. Schultz was de-clared elected.

lepublican Assemblyman Elected in Herkimer HEREIMER, N. Y., Nov. 11.-The Board of Supervisors completed its canvass of the vote for member of Assembly to-day. The canvass shows the election of the Republican candidate E. Legrange Smith, by a plurality of 18. The attorneys for the Democratic candidate were present during the count and made copies of all protested and void ballots, which number over 200. Hoth sides claim that votes were returned as void that should have been counted, and it is possible the case will go to the courts.

Unqualified Indorsement of the Medical Profession.

The discovery of the marvellous properties of the now world-renowned Bethesda Spring, by Col. Richard Dunbar, in 1868, marks an era in medical history. Keenly alive to all of nature's remedies, the Indians have left abundant evidence of their knowledge of these waters as a powerful agent in the cure of disease, but it was only by specific use, under scientific suggestion, that their real value became known to the world. But what is still more important, the profession of medicine throughout the land has unhesitatingly indorsed this wonderful water, as the following positive statements will attest:

President McKinley: "To the Editor of the Day: Rumors have just reached me, though I have as yet seen no press reports to confirm them, of recent activity on the part of your citizens for the recatablish ment of the Harvard-Yale contest and other boat races at New London. I sincerely trust the movement will succeed and will always be glad personally to do all in my power to help it. The New London course is the finest which I have ever seen either in this country or abroad. The local management of the races has been satisfactory in the past and can easily be rendered still more successful on a larger scale in the future. Regatta week at New London, in which the leading colleges an New London, in which the leading colleges and schools can compete in races of various lengths and conditions, ought to, and I believe will, eventually prove to be not only one of the most important annual athletic events of the United States, but a delightful aguatic fête as well, attended by thousands of visitors and spectators from all parts of the country. Allow me sincerely to wish progress and prosperity to the proposed "American Honley," with New London as its headquarters. Very truly yours.

A Fight for the Brooklyn Coronerships ! Some Brooklyn politicians were talking yesterday over a probable attempt of Coroners Coombs and Nason to hold on to their offices after the close of the year, although their successors have been elected. It has all along been understood that the adverse decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of District Attorney Backus disposed of any claims Coombs and Nason might have to retain their places after Jan. 1. Some of their friends say that their grounds for a contest are based on the failure of the Becretary of State to declare the offices yearnt after Dec. 31 and to issue a special call for the election of their successors.
